WHEELING, NOVEMBER 22, 1894.

A Place for Mr. Wilson.

The President is supposed to desire to do something to break the fall of Mr. William L. Wilson from the head of the ways and means committee and out of the house of representatives.

This may be true, for the President and Mr. Wilson are good friends and closely connected in the discredited movement of so-called tariff reform. No West Virginian will object to the President giving Mr. Wilson a consolation purse in any form that may have due regard to the public service.

It has been suggested that if our own Judge Jackson, of this district and circuit, could be induced to resign that would make a comfortable place for Mr. Wilson. Lawyers who practice before Judge Jackson's court and know Mr. Wilson would regret to see the consolation come in this form, for they do not regard Mr. Wilson as having the legal attainments to fill the place.

The suggestion that Mr. Wilson may get the vacancy expected to be caused by Judge Jackson, of the supreme court of the United States, is received in West Virginia with something very near to amazement. Mr. Wilson had been at the bar about eleven years, from 1871 to 1882, when he became president of the West Virginia university. From the university he went to Congress. Since he has been in Congress he has practiced politics, not law. So that the proposition is to put on the supreme bench of the United States a man fifty-one years of age who has spent eleven years of his life at the bar and has had no active connection with the legal profession for the past twelve years.

President Cleveland should find some other way to show his good feeling for Mr. Wilson. Hands off the supreme court of the United States, the highest judicial tribunal in the world!

When Japan desires the United States or any other power to interfere to prevent her knocking the lining out of China she will make the request with all the oriental politeness of which she is capable. Till then, "On to Pekin!"

Object Lesson in Politics.

The Democratic press of New York city persists in attempting to make sport of the banquet given by Mr. Chauncey Depew at the Union League Club to the Republican captains of the Bowery, and to belittle its significance. The jokes and jeers find no responsive echo in the minds of the serious and thoughtful, and as a consequence the shafts of ridicule fly wide of the mark.

The invasion of Darkest Democracy by Republican speakers, and the systematic organization of Republican workers within the boundaries of the Bowery in the recent campaign, was, indeed, "carrying the war into Africa," resulting in destroying the autonomous character of that section for the Democracy. For years this stronghold was considered, like Ephraim, to have been joined to its idols, and, like the idolator of old, was let alone in its blind servitude to the Tiger.

Before the breaking of the images and the rending of the wigwag it was counted as the secure appanage of Croker and Grant and the servile gang of Tammany, but there were some Republican leaders who thought there was enough fallow ground to sow in. It was an experiment of very doubtful results, and when Chauncey Depew lifted his eloquent voice, it was indeed a strange sound in Philistia and was counted only as an eccentric and inconsequential episode.

It was marveled at one time that any good could come from the Bowery, so the Republicans kept on sowing and cultivating, abiding the harvest whatever it might be. With that diplomacy and finesse for which he is noted, Mr. Depew appeared before his Bowery auditors as he would have revealed himself to a Carnegie hall assemblage, dress suit, immaculate shirt front and all the paraphernalia he would have worn on the most rigid public occasion. His quick-witted audience was not slow to appreciate that he came as an earnest missionary.

The consequences of the work done are well known, and no longer will the Bowery be sterile ground for Republican seed, or the vast-pocket vote of Democratic bosses. The achievement was too great, from a political point of view, to be passed over with the mere tribute of a smile of satisfaction. To signalize its importance Mr. Depew tendered a banquet to the Republican captains of the districts, inviting them to stretch their legs under the rich mahogany of the aristocratic Union League.

Measured by strict social standards it is a far cry from the palaces of Fifth avenue to the purlieus of the Bowery, but the representatives of neither widely divergent sections were abashed by the contact or lowered in self respect by the association. Each class found the other to be human beings—pleasing, rational, revelations of American citizenship and patriotism under conditions of the severest test.

Incredulous Democratic journals sent their funniest writers to make sport of the feast, but the anticipated incongruity of conduct and speech did not transpire. They came to scoff and remained to praise. Comparative criticism failed to make any distinction between the millionaires and representatives of corporations and the pretorians of the Bowery in the observance of the polite amenities of the function or eloquence of utterance.

There was no hesitation or embarrassment that would suggest that the Bowery boys feared they were encroaching on territory where angels might fear to tread. These veritable captains of the watch bore themselves as being conscious of their American manhood and their common rights as citizens of a common republic.

What an object lesson of the brotherhood of man in the commonality of vital interests, the common weal of the country and a patriotism that knows no cloth and no aristocracy but that of the head and heart.

Mr. Depew's banquet has served its purpose well in bringing together these two elements in politics, so long in opposition to each other; in dispelling the illusions of the one and the distorted vision of the other, and in recognizing their mutual dependence in public affairs. He did more than passing well, and we shall expect to hear of similar occasions of fraternization in the coming years.

The Democratic congressman who did not go down in the wreck thinks he is the Hon. Mr. Somebody.

President Cleveland's Fortune.
 Wall street believes that President Cleveland has accumulated about $6,000,000. This is a great deal of money. Mr. Cleveland is known to be a wealthy man, and every dollar of his wealth has been made since he entered on his first term of office, less than ten years ago.

If he has now $6,000,000 he has made it all at the rate of more than $800,000 a year. This is making money very fast on a salary of $50,000 a year and free house rent for about five years of the time, and for the other part having a not very active connection with a law firm.

While Mr. Cleveland was laying up this treasure he was devoting a good deal of his time and his talent to an effort to array the poor against the rich. Since he takes so much interest in the poor, and since he has become in a very short time a very rich man, it might help to eat many a deserving man on his feet if Mr. Cleveland would explain how he did it.

So great an achievement places Mr. Cleveland beside Marlborough and Clive, and qualifies him to testify as an expert.

If it shall appear that Prince, Democrat, of Raleigh county, was elected to a seat in the house of delegates, he will hold it. If it shall appear that Ford, Republican, was elected and counted out, Prince will go out and Ford will go in. There will be a contest, a fair trial of the case and an honest decision.

The Blanche Mine Disaster.

The mine disaster in Brooke county was awful in its results, but the most impressive fact about it was that, unless many skilled miners are mistaken, the accident could have been prevented.

Such casualties will occur, but it is rarely that it can be shown before one does occur that those interested have been warned of the danger and its source pointed out. It is a part of the sworn testimony that when State Mine Inspector Harr visited the Blanche mine, only a week ago, he was asked to consider the dryness of the mine and the unusual quantity of dust, and his attention was directed to the fact that twice explosions had been caused by this peculiarity of the mine.

It is a fearful responsibility that must rest upon some man's conscience, and when the facts are considered the coroner's jury's "censure" seems a very mild verdict.

Our Democratic friends are not getting on well in their masterly effort to select a Republican senator of the United States from West Virginia. The Republicans of the state have already settled that important matter. The legislature will ratify the popular choice. Mr. Elkins will take the seat as soon as Mr. Camden's term ends.

Prize Fighting and Boxing.

What Fitzsimmons is he. Let it be granted that he is not an admirable member of society. But he is not the murderer of Riordan. He had no reason to kill the man whom he hired to box with him. It is not established beyond question or beyond a reasonable doubt, that Riordan died from a blow dealt him by Fitzsimmons.

Moreover there is a radical difference between prize fighting and boxing. There is no better exercise than a vigorous set-to with the gloves, and a man who knows how to use them is rarely one to seek a serious encounter.

The removal of the Altemheim water works higher up the creek to obtain a better supply seems to be an assured fact, and with that will come electric light for the populous and growing valley. At the same time the Wheeling Electrical Company is seriously considering the extension of its line in the same direction. Between the two there is reasonable assurance that before long the region "out the pike" will have electric light.

The treasury department is to spot, and in some mysterious way to punish, persons who draw gold out of the treasury to buy bonds offered to replenish the gold in the treasury. The means by which the gold is got from the treasury are honest and lawful. Who has authority to punish persons who get gold in this way? It looks as though the administration is playing the baby act.

THE B. & O. REPORT.

An Unusually Clear Statement—Efficiency of the Present Management.

President Mayer's annual report made yesterday to the stockholders of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, is an unusually clear and satisfactory statement, and it is accompanied by tables from the late auditor and the general manager, which furnish the fullest details of the management of the road during the past year. The stockholders and the public are taken into the confidence of the company, as they should be, and the actual value of the property is made known, as far as it is in the power of the officials to do so. In this way doubt and suspicion are cleared away, and the road made to stand on its merits. That this frank and open policy is the proper one is shown by the growth of public confidence in the road since President Mayer took charge, and the gradual, but regular, improvement in every department.

The past year has been a severe one on all of the trunk lines, and it was generally expected that a comparison with the World's Fair year, when the whole nation appeared to be on the road, would be greatly in favor of the latter. The brunt of the financial and business depression lapped over upon the present year, and the great coal strike paralyzed one of the most profitable branches of railroad traffic. In spite of this, however, the Baltimore & Ohio is able, under its present management, to make a most excellent showing. The receipts for passengers did not fall off as decidedly as many expected, but the receipts from freight fell away $3,645,520, by reason, principally, of the long suspension of the coal traffic. The receipts from other sources showed considerable advances, and the reduction of expenses during the year was tremendous, amounting in all to $3,481,292. The net earnings for the year were $6,941,973, or only $230,852 less than during the World's Fair year.

Under the present administration the road has been almost built up from the ground, so many and such varied repairs having become necessary through the vain efforts to maintain large dividends when the majority of railroad properties were unable to stand such drains. The money spent on these necessary repairs has been earned by the company, but the latter, instead of paying dividends that lessened the road's power to earn dividends, has at length put it into a condition that will enable it to reimburse its stockholders without encroaching on the permanent value of the property. The wisdom of such a policy is made apparent by the great decrease in expenses, and the payment of a reasonable dividend, in spite of the unpropitious year for railroads.

GOFF WON'T HAVE IT.

An Associate on the Bench Says He Does Not Desire the Seat.

Danielle, Va., Special in New York Times.
 Judge Hughes, who has been sitting with Judge Nathan Goff in the United States circuit court of appeals for the Fourth circuit, says that Judge Goff is not a candidate for the West Virginia judgeship. Judge Hughes quotes Judge Goff as saying that he did not desire the position, and would not give up his commission of circuit judge for it. This announcement will strengthen the chances of Stephen B. Elkins as the successor of Senator Camden, as Judge Goff was considered the only formidable rival to Mr. Elkins.

The Absorbing Question.

Ritchie Gazette.

A good deal of Republican politics is abroad in this state and there seems to be a little too strong a desire for office to bode good to the party. A great triumph may not be unmixd with evil. Fierce contests within a party weaken it for future effort.

The most absorbing question of course is as to who will be chosen United States senator by the legislature. Probably the great majority of the Republican party has been taking it for granted Hon. S. B. Elkins would be elected without opposition in his own party. It seems, however, this is not to be the case. A number of the other gentlemen are aspirants.

Hon. John A. Hutchison and Hon. George C. Sturgis are avowed candidates.

Among other gentlemen mentioned by their friends are Hon. Edwin Maxwell, Hon. W. P. Hubbard, Hon. N. E. Whitaker and Hon. Nathan Goff. That every one of these gentlemen is eminently qualified for the position, goes without saying, still if there is to be contention for the office, the condition of affairs is such that harm will result to the Republican party. Yet in all fairness the Gazette is bound to say the field is open, and there is no way of cutting out candidates if they choose to persist.

From a Competent Judge.

Ritchie Gazette.

The Gazette takes pleasure in congratulating the INTELLIGENCER on the magnificent service it rendered the Republican party of this state in the late campaign. It got right in touch with the popular pulse and kept along all the time in the right place. The Republicans of West Virginia are proud of the INTELLIGENCER. For party loyalty and sterling service, it has no superior. Its ability is without question and its courage up to the highest mark. Long live the Wheeling INTELLIGENCER!

SOCIAL AFFAIRS.

Interesting Paragraphs About Past Events and Future Functions.

About fifteen couples of the friends of Miss Emma Delbridge surprised her at her home Tuesday evening on the occasion of her eighteenth birthday. The party then adjourned to Nolte's hall, in North Benwood, and passed the evening in dancing and other amusements. All present enjoyed themselves and left for their homes at an early hour yesterday morning.

To-morrow night the Alhambra club, a South Side social organization, will give a select dance at Alert hall. The persons having the arrangements in hand have done everything to make it an enjoyable occasion, and all who attend will pass a pleasant evening.

The Alvin Athletic Club has bills out announcing their masquerade dance for January 18, 1895. This organization believes in taking time by the forelock, and will no doubt have a successful event. Mayer's orchestra will furnish the music, and among the attractions are prizes for the best dressed lady attending and for the gentlemen wearing the most comical costume.

The White Rose Fishing Club, a Moundsville organization, is making arrangements for a dance to be given at the Moundsville opera house on New Year's eve. Prof. Wilson's orchestra will have charge of the music. A number from Wheeling will attend.

Among the events of the season that are looked forward to with much interest are those given by the ever-popular Turner society. On Thanksgiving evening they will give a grand dance, concert and gymnastic entertainment in their hall on North Market street, that will be largely attended. Judging from the past entertainments of the society it is not an empty assertion to say that the coming one will be successful.

Miss Elsa Lazure will entertain the Young People's Working Society at a social at her home on Gravel hill, Bellaire, Thanksgiving night.

Farmers' Institute.

There will be a meeting of the gentlemen having charge of the farmers' institutes for this county on next Saturday. The interest taken in these meetings is increasing every year and next year's sessions are looked forward to as the most largely attended of any. The meeting of the West Liberty institute is to take place on Thursday and Friday, January 16 and 17. The other one will be held at Elm Grove about the middle of February, but the date is not definitely decided upon at present. The programmes in course of preparation are remarkably good ones and will be carried out in a manner to tend to the practical education of those attending. The experimental corps of the state university will be present and assist in the work of instruction. The meetings of those interested in agriculture are doing much towards the advancement of the farming interests, and practical ideas are doing much in the selection of the crops and the manner of their culture.

PERSONAL POINTS.

When the Empress Josephine ordered a $2,000 dress Napoleon did not prance around and denounce her extravagance. He merely sent the dressmakers to prison. This is one reason why so many husbands hold such a high opinion of the emperor.

"DANGEROUS HEALTH."

One of Oliver Wendell Holmes' Happy Phrases.

The Great Foot Applied to it by William Cullen Bryant.

The Boston Herald Says It Fits the Case of a Great Many People.

In a recent editorial, the Boston Herald, in speaking of our great poet, Oliver Wendell Holmes' happy phrase applied to William Cullen Bryant at the recent commemoration of the latter's birthday, says: "Dangerously good health" fits the case of a great many people, young and old, who trust to their strong constitutions and wear themselves out before they know it. This accounts for the fact that so many people in robust health are out down, while those who are less vigorous live on by recognizing their own weakness.

No words are truer. The sick, as a rule, take care of themselves and know enough to use medicine when necessary. It is the person in robust health, who, by overwork, strain upon the nerves, or dissipation, gets just a little out of order, has headaches, becomes nervous and irritable, is unable to sleep well, and wakes tired mornings, with dull feeling head, constipation, no appetite for breakfast, and a general feeling of lassitude, weakness, and lack of ambition to take hold of work, who is in a dangerous way. Such a person has presumed upon a good constitution, and undermined the health. The right medicine must be had and taken at once, or the apparently trivial symptoms will quickly result in utter breaking down.

A well-known lady, Mrs. F. E. Morgan, who resides at 177 Austin street, Worcester, Mass., gives a wonderful experience and some most valuable advice. "My nerves were so weak, and I was so very nervous, that I could not sleep nights. I would get up in the morning feeling so weak and tired, with loss of appetite and constipation of the bowels. I gradually grew worse until life almost seemed a burden, and at last I had nervous prostration. My nerves were in a terrible condition. I felt too bad for anything, had no ambition. My sister advised me to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I did so. After taking four bottles, I am happy to say that all my troubles disappeared, and I cannot say enough of this wonderful medicine. I have lots of friends who can also testify to its great merits. It therefore behooves all who are not feeling well, or who are run down in health, in fact, all who are out of order in any way, to use this grand medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy at once. It will make you well and strong. It is not a patent medicine, but the discovery and prescription of the well-known Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York City, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted by all without charge, personally or by letter.
